Red Cross Fund Campaign Goal Set By Chapter

A minimum goal of $96,710.00 has been set for the 1953 Red Cross Fund Campaign by the board of directors of the chapter, announced by George W. Bradham, chapter chairman. Careful and detailed preliminary work went into budget preparation by the chapter's executive committee, was considered and approved by the chapter board, then submitted to Area Headquarters, Southeastern Area, and given full approval.

The 1953 fund needs represent an increase of $16,356.00 over the 1952 needs—brought about by the following factors: an increase in the cost of the local Civilian Blood Program due to increased usage of blood and blood derivatives for citizens of this community in local hospitals and throughout the Charlotte Region; an expansion of the Red Cross national blood program to meet an emergency request for production of gamma globulin, which helps to prevent paralysis from polio. "The Red Cross, as the official national co-ordinating agency for the procurement of blood, was asked in November by the Office of Defense Mobilization to provide as much gamma globulin as possible before this summer's epidemic season. To extend the present Red Cross Blood Program to meet this new usage of gamma globulin will require $7,000,000.00."

Another factor in the Red Cross financial picture, is the increasing need for Red Cross services to members of the Armed Forces and their families here in the community, and to meet requests from the Department of Defense to expand our present field coverage to new military outposts. Total goal of $96,710.00 represents $60,006.00 to be raised for local services and $37,704.00 as this community's fair share of the national Red Cross budget. "Since the American Red Cross is nationwide in scope, some phases of the program which benefit this, and every other community, are administered through the national organization."

Mose Kiser is serving as general chairman of the 1953 Red Cross appeal and is mobilizing volunteer leadership to give every adult, business and industry in Greensboro and Guilford County an opportunity to have a part in assuring the continuance of all Red

Troop 13, sponsored by the Edgeville School PTA, cordially invites parents and others who are interested in scouting to attend Troop 13's first open house Monday, February 9. This open house, to be held in the basement of Edgeville School, is in recognition of Boy Scout Week.

Troop 13 secured its first charter in April, 1952, and since that time has grown in number and fame. The above picture was taken just outside the amphitheater production of "Horn in the West" last summer. The troop had gotten off to an early start at 5:00 a.m., driven over a hundred miles to Camp Fiesta near Boone, hiked to the top of Grandfather Mountain, took a tour through Linville Caverns, cooked supper and attended "Horn in the West." A few weeks after the mountain trip, the troop spent the week end at Kure Beach, sunbath and all. Troop 13 has made numerous camping trips to Camp Herman and during the course of less than a year has promoted each member at least one rank, and has had a lot of fun doing it. Next summer is expected to be even more eventful. The following are members of Troop 13 and committee men:

Know Your Supervisor

Joseph McDaniel, who came to work for Cone Mills in 1935 as a sweeper, is now an assistant overseer in the Spinning Department, on the second shift at White Oak Plant.

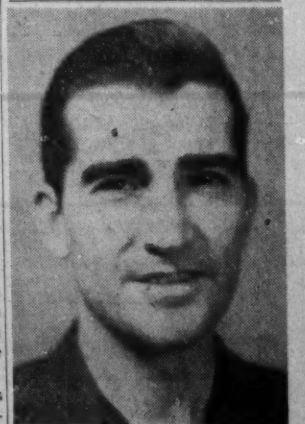

Mr. McDaniel, who was born in Guilford County in 1919, started out sweeping. Later he was transferred to the Roller Shop, then to his present job.

In 1938 he married the former Annie Weisner.

Mr. McDaniel had a course in spinning fixing with the Cone Vocational School and a course in managing men at work with the International Correspondence School.

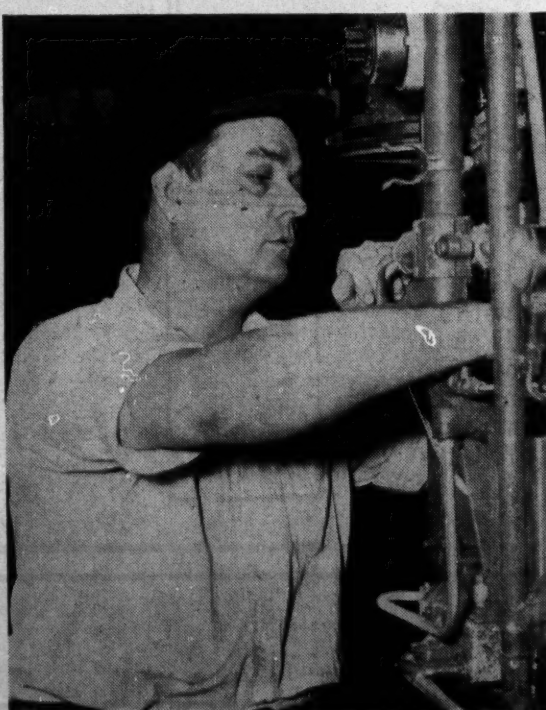

Mr. McDaniel spent 19 months in the Army. His hobbies are gardening and horseback riding.

Mr. McDaniel states, "I like my job and enjoy working with people."

Joseph L. McDaniel

The McDaniel's live at 2571 Yanceyville Road.

Orin V. Harris

Orin V. Harris, employee in the Spooling Department on the first shift at White Oak Plant, was born in Guilford County in 1908. He came to work for Cone Mills as a bobbin hauler in 1927. Later he was transferred as a fixer, his present job.

Mr. Harris married the former Jewel A. Andrews. He is a member of the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church.

In explaining about his hobby and job, Mr. Harris states, "Machines are my hobby. I like my job because I like to see what makes a machine tick. I don't like to see a machine in operation and not understand why it runs. The main purpose of the spooler is to transfer the yarn from the bobbin to another spool and wind 15,000 yards on this spool to prepare it for the Dyeing Department.

"The machine I work on is very complicated. A knottor consists of 232 parts. Any of these parts that wear down have to be replaced or the knottor will not tie properly. I like to take a machine down for the first time and study each part as I take it off so I will not have a hard time putting it together again."

The Harris' have two children and live at 1510 20th Street.

Positive But Not Definite

President Eisenhower's program as outlined in his State of the Union message to Congress was positive but not definite. This does not mean to imply that there were no definite proposals in his message. Certainly his order concerning the fleet was most definite.

On the other hand, he dealt in ideas and generalities in respect to many of the important proposals and items discussed. He did not give details.

We cannot find fault with his approach. We must remember that he has been in office only a very short period of time and it would be too much for us to expect definite recommendations on all matters concerning the affairs of the nation, domestically and internationally. In fact, we were pleased with the methodical manner in which he is approaching our many serious problems. It is apparent that he is attempting to lay the groundwork for an efficient, orderly, well-planned type of administration by using splendid talent and placing responsibility upon those chosen to thoroughly and conscientiously study each problem.

It is also apparent that our President does not intend to go off half-cocked and jump at hasty conclusions. We believe he has confidence in those he has entrusted with responsibility. We likewise believe that if any of them fail in their scope of activity that he will promptly replace them with others who will not fail.

Our enthusiastic appraisal of the President's State of the Union message does not mean that we are not aware of the fact that mistakes will be made. We realize that with the complex and intricate problems which our new President has inherited, it would be too much to expect perfection. We do believe, however, that the President will humbly, conscientiously, and prayerfully attempt to render to this country the very best service it is humanly possible for him and his associates to render. In so doing it is now evident that partisanship will have little place in his administration.

The least we can say at this time is that we like his approach to the job ahead. We consider it sound.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

...by George S. Benson
President of Harding College

The 13th Harding College Freedom Forum, held on our campus last week, dug deeply into the problem of how to improve labor-management relations in America. Among the 100 conferees from 25 states were 15 men from the ranks of organized labor. Other groups represented included business, the clergy, education, the American Legion, and civic clubs. There were five women conferees.

The give-and-take Forum discussions on the problems of labor-management relations were based on the unanimously accepted fact that every American, regardless of his occupation, economic status or politics, has a stake in making the private enterprise system work better and produce more goods and services. The more wealth the system produces, the better will be the living standard of everyone.

Of unusual interest at the Forum were the facts showing that 65 per cent of the national income goes to employees, 9 per cent to professional men and unincorporated business, 7 per cent to farmers, 4 per cent to landlords, 4 per cent to stockholders, 4 per cent to bond holders and other lenders. Another 2 per cent is retained by business for expansion, and that's what makes new jobs. The final 5 per cent in the statistics represents the portion of the national income which corporations, altogether, pay in taxes.

In the 30-year period 1920-1949, corporations paid out in dividends $96 billion and paid out in taxes to the government $117 billion. Of interest too were the statistics, based on research conducted by the University of Notre Dame, showing that 73 cents out of every $1 of interest, dividends and rent payments to individuals go to people with less than $100-a-week income. In other words, the property and the wealth of America is distributed widely through the whole population.

It is desirable that the company we work for be successful; and it is even more desirable that we preserve the successful economic system under which industry has made such great strides and our living standard has become the envy of the world. Good employee-employer relationship is a keystone in this dual objective.

Pythian Echoes

by R. Cole Lee

The meeting of the Pythian Lodge of last Monday evening proved to be a very interesting one from the standpoint of the second degree. Passing from the Rank of Page to that of Esquire were H. L. Byers and William M. Tidwell. The following Monday, February 9, there will be held another class in the second, so fellows, knowing what to expect, make a date now to attend your Lodge. It is the purpose of your Lodge to carry all of the candidates through the Rank work in time for the banquet of February 21.

Speaking of the banquet, I understand from the Committee on Arrangements that they have worked up a very lively affair for the delight of all who can attend. The only light I can throw on the affair is that they have promised a good time. As the banquet date draws nearer, perhaps I can enlighten the curious (even as I am) with more of what to expect. However, I am quite safe in urging you to purchase your tickets by saying you will not regret your investment.

There were many suggestions on how many scenes should be used but the class decided on seven scenes.

Chairmen of the scenes were as follows: Columbus in Spain, Gary Huggins; Columbus in America, Marie Talton; Explorers, Kathryn Redmond; Jamestown, Bonnie Southern; Going to the Church, Eddie Rice; Boston Tea Party, Roger Jones; Declaration of Independence, Jeanie Sullivan.

When the day came for our play it was found that Eddie Rice and Roger Creed were absent. Two wonderful boys from Miss McKinney's homeroom, Larry Heath and Robert Johnson, took their places. Billy Smith and Ted Combs, who are from the homeroom, took a few of the absentees' parts.

The employees of the Pineville Plant have certainly enjoyed having Miss Phoebe Richards of Greensboro with us this week. She has been examining everyone's eyes to see how many need glasses. We appreciate the excellent service she has given us. She made herself one of us. Each employee had a nice visit with her as well as getting his eyes tested. We hope she will come back again soon.

Thoughts On The Business Of Life

What our deepest self craves is not mere enjoyment, but some supreme purpose that will enlist all our powers and will give unity and direction to our life. We can never know the profoundest joy without a conviction that our life is significant—not a meaningless episode. The loftiest aim of human life is the ethical perfecting of mankind—the transfiguration of humanity.—Henry J. Golding

When the Norsemen discovered America, they had no compass. Yet the compass had been invented by the Chinese thousands of years before. When, however, Mme. Curie discovered radium, the knowledge of her achievement was spread throughout the world as rapidly as cables and wires could carry it. Mme. Curie's work could have been of no value to the world if her discovery had been known to her alone.—Ivy L. Lee

The delusive idea that men merely toil and work for the sake of preserving their bodies, and procuring for themselves bread, houses, clothes, is degrading and not to be encouraged. The true origin of man's activity and creativeness lies in his unceasing impulse to embody outside himself the divine and spiritual element within.—Froebel

The Christian State proclaims human personality to be supreme; the servile State denies it. Every compromise with the infinite value of the human soul leads straight back to savagery and to the jungle.—Stanley Baldwin

The height of human wisdom is to bring our tempers down to our circumstances, and to make a calm within, under the weight of the greatest storm without.—Defoe

When you know men and you know how to handle men, you've licked the problem of running a business. The executive's job is to provide leadership, the kind of leadership that develops the best efforts of the men under him. He can't do that if he shuts himself up in his office. He has to get out and get acquainted with his men.—Roy W. Moore

Do not spill thy soul in running hither and yon, grieving over the mistakes and the vices of others. The one person whom it is most necessary to reform is yourself.—Emerson

Every human mind is a great slumbering power until awakened by keen desire and by definite resolution to do.—Edgar F. Roberts

Old Craft - New Twist

An inexpensive, rewarding and practical hobby that is finding increased popularity among children and grownups is aluminum handicraft.

Although metal working, particularly that involving soft metals like gold, silver, and copper (chosen materials for centuries), is not new, hobbyists have only recently discovered that a relatively new metal, aluminum, can be used to produce extremely beautiful and practical objects.

According to a study made by the Aluminum Import Corporation, New York, sales distributor for the Aluminum Company of Canada, aimed at finding out new and unusual applications of the metal, the popularity of aluminum handicraft is largely attributed to its pliability, plus the fact that it lends itself to a variety of treatments. For example, it can be polished to a high gloss or frosted to a soft sheen; it can be colored chemically, by painting or lacquering.

Of course, the tools necessary for aluminum handicraft depend on the desired design and type of articles to be made. The articles that can be fashioned at home from the metal seem almost limitless—lamp shades and bases, book covers, match holders, trays and even buttons.

Take an aluminum tray, for instance. All you need is an aluminum circle about 14 inches in diameter free from scratches, some paraffin wax—and etching solution if you want to make a design. Simply heat the metal so that, when the wax is placed on it, the wax will melt and flow freely over the surface. After allowing the wax to cool, transfer the design from a piece of paper to the waxed surface. Then scrape free of wax the parts of the design that are to be etched. A stylus, or even a lead pencil, is a suitable scraper.

Pour the etching solution on the tray and allow it to remain on the work for an hour. Thoroughly wash the solution off with hot water, which also removes the wax. The areas formerly covered with wax remain bright and shiny, while the design is frosted almost white, and is actually carved into the aluminum.

You can flute the edges of the tray with a pair of pliers for a professional appearance. As a final step, the tray should be polished.

The materials necessary for aluminum work may be purchased at most hardware shops, arts and crafts stores, or hobby shops. Some companies are marketing kits for the work; one especially designed for children contains colored sheets of heavy aluminum foil, a series of designs for embossing and a plastic stylus for making designs.

From a hobby pursued for relaxation, aluminum metal work can easily be turned into a hobby which yields attractive profit, but perhaps the greatest rewards to the amateur are in the opportunities for self-expression.

Keeping Heart Patients At Work

Most industrial workers with heart disease can safely keep on the job if their work does not place too great a burden on their hearts. Today, many heart associations are establishing what are called "work evaluation clinics" where workers whose hearts are impaired can obtain advice about the types of jobs for which they are suited.

Patients referred to these clinics, which are frequently set up in community rehabilitation centers, are examined by a team that usually includes a specialist in heart disease, a psychiatrist, a social worker and a vocational counselor or placement worker. This program takes on special importance in view of the nation's need for all available manpower. It has been estimated that if production goals are to be met, it is necessary to bring into defense work over a million and a half additional handicapped persons, many of them with various forms of heart disease.

Fear is often the greatest obstacle the heart patient has to overcome. Sometimes the worker with heart disease is crippled by his own fear of the effect his work will have on his heart. Sometimes he is forced into unemployment because his employer fears that he will not be able to do his work satisfactorily.

Much of the fear of both employer and workers is based on misinformation about the relationship between heart disease and employment. The experience of large industries shows that heart patients can work at many kinds of jobs on an equal footing with workers who have no heart disease.

Through their information programs, heart associations are spreading the news that there is no special risk to worker or employer when the worker with an impaired heart is suitably placed. They are sponsoring research on the effects of various types of work on persons with heart disease and on the suitability of specific occupations for them.

These activities of the American Heart Association and its affiliates, aimed at promoting the selective employment of industrial workers with heart disease, are among the many community services supported by the Heart Fund.

Health For All

Return To Normal Living

Let's assume that you are a tuberculosis patient. It could happen to you, you know. There are some 400,000 Americans with active tuberculosis today, and the disease strikes about 115,000 persons in this country every year, at any age and in any walk of life.

Let's also assume, for purposes of this discussion, that you are already in a tuberculosis hospital receiving the best of medical care. You have learned that, after months of rest in bed, treatment with drugs, and possibly surgery, your disease will be arrested. In short, you will recover. How complete your recovery will be, however, will depend largely on how you live after you leave the hospital.

The question is: Can you find, after you leave the hospital, the way of life necessary for a productive and healthy future?

You have to answer this question yourself, but you will find in the modern tuberculosis hospital a whole team of people ready to help you. This team includes doctors, nurses, social workers, occupational therapists, vocational counselors, and others.

They call themselves a rehabilitation team, since the term rehabilitation covers the whole process of recovery and makes possible the patient's return to a useful, normal life.

The doctors and nurses can help you get well physically and can advise you how to stay well after you leave the hospital. The doctor, of course, is the one to decide what work and play you can undertake physically. A social worker can help you and your family with personal problems, emotional, social, or economic.

Occupational therapists can help you learn new skills, even while you are in the hospital. A vocational counselor may help you discover aptitudes not seriously considered before, or disclose opportunities which you never knew about. He can help you find the job that will best suit your abilities, and that will safeguard your health. Suitable employment has been found for thousands of recovered TB patients.

All these specialists will be working with you to make sure that your return to normal living will be complete and permanent.

BOY SCOUTS OBSERVE

Institutions whose sponsorship makes possible their Units' existence. These include the religious bodies which account for almost half of the nation's Scouting Units, the national or state civic groups, school organizations and local civic groups.

In its latest report to Congress the Boy Scouts of America said that 58,934 institutions are sponsors for the nation's Scouting Units. Of this number 18,739 operate two or more Scout programs such as Cub Scouting for boys 8, 9 and 10 years of age, Boy Scouting for boys 11 through 13 and Exploring for those 14 years old and upward.

The whole Scout family, all three programs, are sponsored by 3,446 institutions, making it possible for a boy to enjoy the three Scouting programs under the same sponsorship for a ten year span, from age eight to eighteen.

Traditionally on Feb. 8, Scouts and Leaders recommit themselves to the Scout Oath or Promise at 8:15 p.m. in the four time zones. These ceremonies will take place, in some instances, at Scout family birthday dinners, while some Cub Dens, Boy Scout Patrols and Explorer Crews will meet in homes of members. Others will meet with their parents Sunday evening in churches or synagogues.

At these Boy Scout Week celebrations many Units will review their program highlights and the successes of its first year in the Three Year Program, its camping and other outdoor activities and its planning for participation at the Third National Jamboree which is expected to attract 50,000 Scouts and Leaders for a week of camping together at Irvine Ranch in southern California next July 17 to 22.
